New Plan Will Check Nose Fly in Sheep Flocks

By Miss Macphail

BRAND, Spent April 30—Sheep raising farmers in southern Saskatchewan have reported to the Dominion Agriculture Crop Survey Ltd., a new plan to check the troublesome nose fly which bothers sheep in summer. The old plan was to dash rain literally on the nose of the animal.

Under the new idea the farmer obtains some diseased animals and lures several hives of bees in the distance about a foot apart. The bees are then filled with salt, and the bees are then literally scattered on the nose of the animal.

The sheep in reaching their nose to the bait will also take the salt with them, thus saving the herdman the trouble and at the same time checking the ravages of the nose fly.

Cooperating to Combat Trucks

Canadian railways are on operating in dealing some means to combat the trucking industry. The plan, suggested by Sir Henry Jackson, President of the Canadian National Railway, would select certain areas and provide trucks which would pick up freight and deliver it to the consignee, thus saving the time and labor of the railway.

Trucks would be the delivery of the freight at the end of the journey.

Health Service of the Canadian Medical Association

EVERYBODY'S WORK

To understand man, epidemic of disease were mysterious, coming from whence no one knew, appeared to be oblique, and then disappearing. It is not to be wondered at then that man looked to the realm of the supernatural for an explanation.

As long as the cause of any disease is unknown and its method of spread remains hidden, we can do but little to control that disease. But as soon as the cause and mode of transmission have been discovered, we are on the road to exterminating that particular disease. He provided its prevention is accepted as everybody's work.

There are few diseases which, because they are usually more severe, milk or food, can be controlled by sanitary measures requiring but little of the individual excepting money to employ workers and to install sanitary plants. Such is not the case, however, with most of the preventable diseases. They require, if success is to be achieved, not only financial support, but active participation by all in the effort to prevent.

There has been a considerable increase in the average expectancy of life, and it is stated that it could be further increased by twenty years if we were to make full use of the knowledge we possess. This might be expressed in other words by saying that we ourselves cut short our lives by our failure to apply what we know to ourselves.

It is well to realize that, in general, this is our own fault. Your doctor cannot apply this knowledge for you. Your Health Department cannot do it for you. You must do it for yourself; and it is in your objective that is worth striving for. So the argument that people can survive without paying attention to their health is not a valid one. If such attention will bring a fuller life, more a larger measure of happiness and provide better service to mankind, is it not worth the effort?

It is true that much which has been taught in the name of health has been so selling to do with health. The appeal to health has been overdone; when you are urged to do this for the sake of health, you may well ask why, and in the explanation is not reasonable and cannot be supported by scientific evidence, you have a right to reject it. That is, however, not why you should disregard health teaching which is founded on scientific knowledge, the practice of which is essential to your well-being.

Quackery concerning health, as directed to the Canadian National Health Service, is a serious matter. Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

On Saturday afternoon, April 30, a special meeting of Sentinel Hill W.I. was held at Sentinel Hill School in honor of Mrs. J. P. Stevens, who has since left for Rochester, Alberta. This was purely a social gathering.

The next meeting will be held at the school on May 12th.
